

FOUND DERELICT SCHOONER AFTER CREW WERE SAVED

Liner Admiral Schley Too Late to Make Rescues From the Warner Moore.

DYNAMITER ALONGSIDE.

Petrifying Passenger Underwood Says Jamaica Is Field for Horse Racing.

The steamship Admiral Schley of the United Fruit Company, arrived in port today after a rough trip from Kingston, Jamaica, and with stories of a stormy Christmas at sea—so stormy that some of the passengers could eat their Christmas dinner.

Yesterday the weather was calmer, and when the Admiral Schley was a short distance south of the Delaware Capes the passengers were stirred by the cry of "Rescue!" They had sighted the derelict schooner Warner Moore, which was abandoned, a day or two ago, by her captain and the six men of her crew, who were taken into Norfolk Saturday by Capt. J. A. Meech, of the James Paul. They were picked up off Winter Quarter Lightship and had spent the night in an open skiff.

Capt. Jansen, of the Admiral Schley, bore down upon the Warner Moore, expecting to effect a rescue, but found the new derelict destroyer Seneca standing by. The Schley advanced to speaking distance with the Seneca, and the captain of the destroyer said he was getting ready to blow up the derelict with dynamite.

"She was a pathetic sight," said Sheffield A. Arnold, a landscape architect of this city, who was a passenger on the Admiral Schley. "The American flag was up on the mast and the mainmast and her sails were lowered, but not furled, showing that she had been deserted hurriedly. She was wrecked when we sighted her, with the waves breaking over her, and before we left her forward deck-house went under. We didn't stay to see her dynamited."

Kingston Racing Mad.
E. R. Underwood, of this city, who was taking a wedding trip—Mrs. Underwood was Miss Florence Fraser—said that Kingston was racing mad and that great hopes were entertained there of making the place a successor to the big tracks in the East.

"In the two days of racing I saw last week," Mr. Underwood said, "an American, A. H. Harris, swept everything before him with his two horses, My Marston and Baby Duchess. Before I left he told me that his success had made the English owners, with their native-bred horses, so angry that they had handicapped his horses too heavily for them to possibly win. I'll have to buy up all the lead in Jamaica and then get John L. Sullivan to ride for me if I want to race at all," he told me.

Capt. W. J. Barry, the pilot who brought the Admiral Schley in, made his last trip, as he will retire. He is sixty-seven years old, and has served on a ship about forty years.
